NIFD's new courses in textile designing

Saturday November 5 2005 10:31 IST

BHUBANESWAR: City-based National Institute of Fashion Designing (NIFD) has chalked out plans to offer three-year degree and two-year diploma course in textile designing from the current session.

The institute, recognised by the State Government, is affiliated to the Utkal University of Culture.

Director of NIFD Sandhya Patnaik said the decision was taken after a number of fashion houses and well-known clients evinced interest to pick up NIFD students.

Set up three years back, the institute has already carved a niche for itself in eastern India by placing most of its diploma holders in well-known firms of India and abroad.

"Our students have also made their mark in Bollywood," she said.

"All these have been made possible due to the institute's standardised and well regulated tie-ups with numerous fashion houses. Arranging both on and off campus recruitment drives has also helped," she added.

Every year NIFD organises fashion and dress designing shows.

After judging the designs and quality, fashion houses pick up students as designers, she said.

Similarly, during the institute's interior designing workshop, students get an opportunity to display their skills before noted designers, Patnaik said.

The Director said the institute is also promoting and enhancing the prospects of traditional rich art and craft items of the State by amalgamating them with contemporary designs.

With a strength of about 100 seats, NIFD receives students from Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, West Bengal and Assam, besides Orissa, she added.
